Woodbury, MN: When Karen Pavlicin's husband, Bob, died of colon cancer at 38, she was at a loss for words despite being a professional writer. She recalls, "There were no words sufficient to describe what I felt. Then one night while cooking dinner, I began to sing. I sang about seeing Bob in everything, missing his smell and touch. I sang about our stories, about celebrating life." Pavlicin continued to write and sing, resulting in more than 40 songs that first year following her husband's death.

Less than two years later, her father died of a sudden heart attack. "I grieved my dad's death very differently, but still, music has played a powerful part of that healing," Pavlicin says.

Those early songs have led to the release of Pavlicin's first full-length CD, Little Bit of Faith. Pavlicin takes listeners on a journey through grief to hope. Featuring contemporary blues, folk, and jazz stylings, the twelve-song CD offers powerful reflection and hope for grieving hearts. One hundred percent of the profits from the sale of Little Bit of Faith are donated to cancer research.

As Pavlicin has shared her songs with friends and family members, she's realized just how many people are grieving and searching for words. "A loss of any kind leaves so many unanswered questions," she says. "I learned that a little bit of faith goes a long way. I hope that by sharing the words I found, others will find a little bit of faith for their journey, too."

SIDEBAR (permission is granted to print the following sample lyrics with credits):

From the title song “Little Bit of Faith” by Karen Pavlicin

*You can't keep searching for reasons why
You'll miss what's right in front of your eyes
If you show a little bit of faith you know
God will take care of what comes tomorrow
Just live each moment with a little bit of faith
And when you pray, child, you've got to believe*

*(chorus) With a little bit of faith and a whole lot of grace
We'll make it through a life full of changes
Little bit of faith and a whole lot of grace
Have faith, have faith, believe*

From the song “Stories” by Karen Pavlicin

*Ever since you've been gone, I've been wandering around
I see you in everything, hear you in every song
Yet your smell, your touch flies away with the breeze
And all that I'm left with is our stories*

*Is it the tears in my eyes that make your image blurred?
Is your star the closest bridge between Heaven and Earth?
How can I lay my head in your shoulder and dream about tomorrow?
How do I celebrate life without you here?*

*(chorus) Stories, stories, all that I'm left with is our stories
Bridging Heaven and Earth, tomorrow, today, and yesterday
One moment at a time, we celebrated life
And when you celebrate life, you've got stories to tell*
